

Case Study – Coala Supertack & Adverset

Ever wondered what to do with that spare piece of blank white washed office brick or breeze block wall that keeps staring out at you?

Such a dilemma faced the team at Escape2 The Sands Apartments when they moved into their brand new booking office premises on the North Bay, Scarborough.

We were asked if we could produce anything that could cover the blank breeze block wall space and immediately suggested our heat sensitive wall vinyl. Themed as an underwater scene, a decision was made to fill the whole wall space with the artwork and the effect was stunning and created massive impact.

This recently launched exciting new display/signage product has created huge interest and joins our fast-growing family of giant display printing capabilities.

Graffiti Wall Art Effect

Coala Supertack is a specialised printed vinyl which can be applied to any brick wall or breeze block textured surface. The material is very effective for wall art and mural applications and is heated into the surface, maintaining the characteristic/shapes of the brickwork to create a 'graffiti/spray painted' type display. 'The finish is amazing and offers the effect of a piece of hand painted wall art, moulding to every texture', said Managing Director, John Easby.

Made-to-measure or cut to shape

Working either from your own picture/image or a design which we can create, we offer to produce the vinyl made-to-measure to fit any area, filling either a whole wall space, or as an object piece to feature on part of a wall area, digitally cut to shape.
